We had a great day today continuing our winter theme.

We made an adorable ice skating rink with a little figurine in the middle.

What fun it was to paint the plate light blue and make fake snow out of cotton balls.

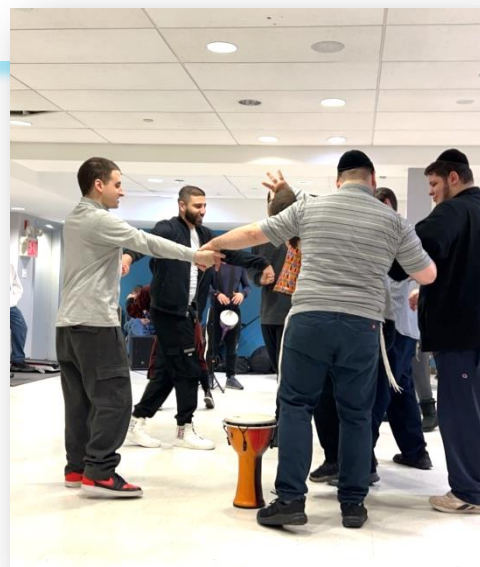

We then painted rice white and created a sensory project using different snow themed objects mixed into the "snow" rice. Next week we will receive cards so we can play I SPY with the rice.

It was so exciting when the drummer came and sang with us. He handed out many musical instruments so we could play along. Mike sings great songs as he drums. In one of these songs Mike sings a question to each participant. He sings "hey, hey, what do you say, let me know your name". The participant says his name and Mike sings "hello, (eg.) Danny, what do you say, how are you today?". The participant can give a "thumbs up" or say how they are feeling.

Everyone especially enjoys this song.

We are looking forward to next week :)
