Rosh Hashanah Craft..

Rosh Hashanah is drawing near,

The smell of honey is in the air.

We pray for a year of success and good health,

One of happiness and abundant wealth!

Day Hab has been a bustle of activity as we are preparing for the upcoming Yom Tov. Joyous music can be heard over the loudspeakers. "Dip the apple in the honey." On Tuesday, Fayge unraveled a sophisticated craft. The participants would be designing a wooden board; complete with a jar to place honey in and the prayer for a sweet new year. We each received a glass jar with three of the panels covered. We painted the open panels using orange acrylic paint. The participants then coated the paint with mod podge to create a shine. Roger had a serene look on his face as he stroked the brush. Shoshana was thinking about what the craft symbolized. We then painted a honey dipper. The finishing touch was a golden bee which we placed on the cover of the jar. We will be finishing this craft next week. We can hardly wait to grace our tables with these meaningful boards as we crown Hashem as our King!

Spotlight on David..

On Wednesday, we were honored to feature David. We learnt all about his likes and interests. David's favorite activity at Otsar is our weekly arts n' crafts session. We are surprised each week with a masterpiece. We learnt that David's favorite color is white. His favorite food served at Otsar is nutritious fish. David's beloved friends include Eddie J and Mark. During his spare time, David enjoys coloring and creating a craft out of the sheets. The participants clapped for him, happy for his chance to shine. Whose up for next weeks spotlight?!

Musical Chairs..

The participants were delighted to play the classic game of musical chairs. We prepared the chairs in a line and turned on festive music. The participants danced along, eyeing the Ipad with music playing to see when it would stop. Yanky reached the chair just before Danny. We cheered our friends on and ached our way through the game. The lucky winner was none other than Lila! Stay tuned for some exciting holiday fun coming up next week!!
